THE MUSEUM

The Richard and Pat Johnson Palm Beach County History Museum, operated and maintained by the Society, opened its doors to a new era in our history. Located within the historic 1916 Court House in downtown West Palm Beach, which also houses the Society, the Archives, and the Museum Bookstore, the Museum enriches the lives of children and adults alike by making our history accessible, interesting, and meaningful. The Museum includes permanent and special exhibit space that reflects the influence of the many cultures in our County's diverse history, from the earliest Native American inhabitants to present day. It also explores the natural environment and many communities that have contributed to our County's distinct identity. The Museum is free to the general public and supported in large part by membership fees. In thanks for their support members receive a 10% discount in the Museum Bookstore.
